LISTVYANKA

Listvyanka Town – is a small town near Lake Baikal, also as the closet lakeside village to Irkutsk. Walk along the shore of the lake, visit the fish market and discover the daily lifestyle of fisherman. You can taste the famous local smoked omul fish here.

LAKE BAIKAL

Olkhon Island – the third largest lake island in the world. If Lake Baikal is the pearl of Siberia, then the Olkhon Island is the heart of Baikal. The island is famous for its natural sights and people there believe the island to be a spiritual place as well. Winter is a great time to catch Olkhon Island's dazzling ice caves, frosty cliffs, frozen waterfalls and giant cracks that can run for several km on the surface of Lake Baikal. Temperatures hover around minus -20 degrees Celsius for so long that the ice can be two meters thick in some places and translucent turquoise waves hang in frosty suspensions. From mid- February to end of March, an ice road appears on the lake called 'zimnik' (Winter road in Russian)

Shamanka Rock Mountain – Just off the sandy west coast near Khuzhir, also known as the Cape Burhan. It is one of the natural wonders of Asia, with the sharp white marble rock and granite rock just up over a horseshoe cove. It's the place where the indigenous Buryats believed that the gods of Baikal lived and it is a place of power and mystery. This shaman regularly performs cleaning rituals and special ceremonies near the rock throughout the year. (This Holy place has a powerful energy, it is not recommended children and pregnant women to visit)

Thirteen Pillars – the shamanists stand on represent the thirteen sons of God. It is wrapped with colorful ribbons praying for good luck, might as well be a good wish.

Cape Khoboy – is the northernmost cape on Olkhon. On the cape, from a distance you can see a rock, whose outline suggests a women's profile on a Greek galley nose. A sharp and narrow outcropping that gave it the name, meaning tusk or fang. According to one of the Buryat legends, this rock is a girl whom gods turned to stone for he envy and evil nature. When exploring the caves in the winter, there are the largest ice hummocks. But mist striking is not the size of the hummocks and not even the purify if the ice, and its color! The ice floes Shine with a magical, amazingly clear blue light. The place is notable for its polyphonic echo, which is reflected from the monolithic rock. In winter, you can explore the grottoes, decorated with ice and transparent icicles.
